43 Regarding Mr. Burrows comments

If one accepts the Book of Mormon as being true, one then accepts the methods in which it was brought forth in our day. In addition, if accepted as truth, then the believer accepts that while the modern Book of Mormon was in fact printed in the early 1800's, the original content contains no words of Joseph Smith, Jr's., only the words, which appeared on what appeared to be parchment in the bottom of a top hat. Joseph reads allowed to his various scribes (at least there) what is written in English. They write it as read and read it back to Joseph. If correct, then new English translations appear and the process is repeated until finished.

Thus, while being very uncommon to us, all who accept the Book of Mormon as truth must accept this as the process by which the world in our day received that record.

Thus the record, much like the artifacts unearthed in the U.S, contain religious histories, which even go back in time to our beginnings much like the Bible.

However, the Bible as we know it, having been put together from many earlier historical religious histories was also printed at a later date, yes near 400 A.D.

So the way I see it is that the artifacts unearthed in the U.S. and very possibly become a third historical evidence of the histories passed down using the Bible, and the Book of Mormon. That while both the Bible and the Book of Mormon are to contain errors of the flesh, possibly the stones or tables which I consider books in most cases, may even contain a more simple and accurate record than that in the Bible and Book of Mormon.

Personally, having handled many of the books hidden from the public by LDS Church leaders, unlike the Hoffman forgeries, I personally believe them to most likely be more true and perfect than possibly the stories contained in even the Book of Mormon. Both having come from the earth in this same land which I know to be the Promised Land, to the Jaredites, the Nephite-Mulekites, and now the Gentiles. Which Promised land is the Promised Land because it is the place of the creation of human life, and according to teachings, true or not, is the place where all is to come to and end as Adam and Eve are brought forth at the end of the millennium, according to the Apocrypha.

I feel as strongly about those tablets, slate, clay and brass, as I do of those Mr. Burrows has found. I have some of which Mr. Burrows has sold me, and if you have the funds available I would highly recommend you contact him to purchase and save or preserve these precious items for the future. Mr. Burrows, a personal friend is the person who discovered what I known as the Burrows Cave, He has written a book about his discovery, and I recommend that also, while there are copies available. I do understand that what he offers must contain some privacy information to protect the cave, but for the most part I believe it is true.

My two bits, for today.

Duane

PS. One thought regarding the Mad Cow disease, and Aids, etc. I wonder if these could be some of the plagues which are to cover the earth in the last days. It appears that our methods of worldwide travel has set us up in the world today to experience world wide plagues.

In addition, I just watched a program on the Bible Codes. Interesting, the codes indicate that a worldwide devastation is to occurred 2012 AD. Interesting, the Mayan or Aztec Calendar ends 2011 A.D. Also I have information that that calendar before moving to the Mexico area came from the Utah area about 502 B.C. . Interesting, this is the time, in the Book of Mormon when Nephi had died, Jacob had died and all the small books of history were written, when the Lamanites almost destroyed the Nephites. And then this being the area where the rock layers were broken up to form mountains, thus the creation of Lake Bonneville. Seems to fit nicely.

Now if when the snow melts I can find evidence that Adam and Eve are buried in this area, wouldn't that be fun.
