Hang in there non-Book of Mormon readers or believers, as we will give you exclusive, undeniable evidences of its truthfulness which will change your understanding of the purpose of life.

#7 Truth

Life is somewhat like collecting your mail from the mailbox, or even cleaning our your emails. You take charge of that part of your live as you discard those items which have no real value to you. The one's you keep, and with greater scrutiny you will dump more of the unwanted.

Many people, some time in their life will begin to wonder just what is truth and holds real value for them. They will dump the Wheaties, the breakfast of champions, and the boiled cows milk, that does a body good as they attempt to find the real truths of life, and why we are here. They set back and question, "What is truth, and where can I find it." Just where do the errors of flesh begin and end, how many lies can be told and it still be considered truth? Like Orange Juice, it need only contain 5% of real juice to be called Orange Juice.

Maybe in time, like me, you will begin to follow the writings of those of our past, because they knew and believed in a God. The difference is, they lived closer to the creation and God, and if God really exists and there actually was a creation, then if so they might just have a more pure understanding.

The scriptures plainly clarify who is the father of the money system if the money system is used to create rich and poor, and pride. So when you are fortunate enough to land a high paying job, are you being blessed by God, or is Satan just dangling the carrot a little closer to your face as he smiles and gloats in his victory?

Personally, I have learned that there is only one source for truth, that all man, and women, might share what they feel is truth at the time, but they can error. As I come up with questions, I now resort to the scriptures and as yet I have never not been able to up up with comparative answers. Man will always be man. Then I discuss it in my prayers. Then I follow my heart. In most cases the process has worked, and as time goes on the process appears to become easier and easier, as my trust builds in the system. I don't condemn or judge those around me if they have erred, that's not my job. I just verify what they have shared with me through the process I am learned to trust.

Now may will just say get real! Stay on the job until your no longer useful, then collect your retirement and exist until its time to bury you. If this is real, and your religious, I don't believe there is a religion out there that says that today's Federal Reserve notes will be good during the millennium. Some what like confederate money after the war.

I guess those who are saying "Get Real" are also planning that the Social Security System and Federal Reserve Notes will be redeemable by God in the Millennium. If not, then what?
